

AIWF Forum Community Guidelines

Welcome to the AIWF Forum. The mission of this online community and forum is designed to encourage our valued members and partners to create dialogue and content regarding issues that affect Arab women in all sectors of business, professions, public life and civil society.

These Guidelines and Rules have been identified for everyone to follow so that you are aware of what is expected of participants and what you can expect from others in this forum setting.

To keep the community and forum productive and usable for all members, it is critical that users follow the guidelines outlined below. Additionally, usage of the forum implies acceptance of and adherence to the AIWF General terms of service

If you do not accept the Rules below you are not permitted to use this site and should discontinue the use of the site.

AIWF General Rules and Guidelines

To ensure a safe and productive community, you will be required to observe these community rules:

1. It is always advisable that users search the archives of previous messages to avoid duplication of questions and to take advantage of previous contributions from the community.
2. Please ask well-thought-out questions. Your posting should have a positive tone and your comments should be constructive. Respect the fact that others will be reading your posting and their time as well as your own is valuable. Please do not use the forum to ask membership specific questions. Issues related to membership or upcoming events should be directed to info@aiwfonline.com or via our Contact Us page on the site.
3. Make sure your postings are relevant. If you have a new question, start a new thread rather than interrupting the flow of a conversation. If you cannot find a board appropriate for your comment or question, please contact the moderator or provide feedback on the Contact Us board. Solicitations and advertisements are not permitted. Posts made specifically for the promotion of a website, product or service are considered advertising and will be removed.
4. Protect your privacy, your organisations, and others by not sharing information that you would not want seen posted through the web. Do not post personal information including contact information or information received in personal communications without the author's consent. All statements made through the use of your username and password are your responsibility. If at any time you suspect your user identification or password(s) is compromised, or if you become aware of any unauthorised use of your account or other breach of security, it is your responsibility to promptly notify us.

Your discussion alias is the only personal detail that is visible to other users. In cases of extreme violation of these guidelines, the email address may be retrieved from the database to contact you.

5. Please abide by the law, keep your word and do not post anything that would violate any law, or any contractual agreement that you have made.

6. The content on the site comes from a variety of sources, primarily from community members. The opinions expressed within the AIWF Forum Community are those of their authors and not of AIWF or its subsidiaries and affiliates. AIWF makes no claims or representations as to the accuracy, completeness or truth of any material submitted or found in the discussion areas. AIWF is not liable for any website links posted within the discussion areas; website links posted in the discussion areas may link to sites not administered or under the control of AIWF and users open such links at their own risk. AIWF is not liable for any errors or delays in the content or transmission of postings on the site.

7. If you recognise any violation of the guidelines set forth for this community, please notify us within the community by choosing Contact Us. If you have a question and are not sure if the posting in question violates our guidelines, terms of use, terms of service, or policies, please contact us at Contact Us

Participation

Your posts are moderated and so do not appear automatically. Posts that violate the guidelines or show disrespect for the guidelines, our staff and our community, may be edited or deleted by a moderator. We reserve the right to edit or remove any content without warning. Repeated and/or serious violation of the guidelines may result in a user's account being deactivated, losing their account, or even legal action. These guidelines are subject to change at any time without notice.